1. Cicero encourages the men of Rome to maintain their attitude and determination to fight, points to the impossibility of a peace treaty with Antonius and recalls the obligation to the traditions of the Roman people.

hic vester hostis vestram rem publicam oppugnat, ipse habet nullam; senatum, id est orbis terrae consilium, delere gestit, ipse consilium publicum nullum habet; aerarium vestrum exhausit, suum non habet;

- * pacis vero quae potest esse cum eo ratio, in quo est incredibilis crudelitas, fides nulla? est igitur, Quirites, populo Romano, victori omnium gentium, omne certamen cum percussore, cum latrone, cum Spartaco. nam quod se similem esse Catilinae gloriari solet, scelere par est illi, industria inferior. ille cum exercitum nullum habuisset, repente conflavit; hic eum exercitum, quem accepit, amisit. *
- ut igitur Catilinam diligentia mea, senatus auctoritate, vestro studio et virtute fregistis, sic Antoni nefarium latrocinium vestra cum senatu concordia tanta, quanta numquam fuit, felicitate et virtute exercituum ducumque vestrorum brevi tempore oppressum audietis.

Cicero Philippics 4.14–16

This enemy of yours is attacking your Republic, but he himself, has none. He is eager to destroy the Senate – that is, the council of the world – but he himself has no public council. He has emptied your treasury, but has none of his own.

So, just as by my exertions, the Senate's authority and your zeal and courage you broke	Tatal	m orles
Catiline, even so you will soon be hearing that Antonius' villainous band of robbers has been crushed through your unprecedented cooperation with the Senate and the good	Total	marks fortune and valour of your armies and generals. Translated D.R. Shackleton Bailey, adapted

2. Having realised that the image he had seen in the waters was a reflection of himself and he could not act upon this love, Narcissus' life force drains out of him. As he dies, Echo comes upon him and feels pity and sorrow.

et neque iam color est mixto candore rubori, nec vigor et vires et quae modo visa placebant, nec corpus remanet, quondam quod amayerat Echo.

* quae tamen ut vidit, quamvis irata memorque, 495 indoluit, quotiensque puer miserabilis 'eheu' dixerat, haec resonis iterabat vocibus 'eheu'; cumque suos manibus percusserat ille lacertos, haec quoque reddebat sonitum plangoris eundem. ultima vox solitam fuit haec spectantis in undam:
500 'heu frustra dilecte puer!' totidemque remisit verba locus, dictoque vale 'vale' inquit et Echo. ille caput viridi fessum submisit in herba, lumina mors clausit domini mirantia formam: *

tum quoque se, postquam est inferna sede receptus, 505 in Stygia spectabat aqua. planxere sorores naides et sectos fratri posuere capillos, planxerunt dryades; plangentibus adsonat Echo.

Ovid Metamorphoses 3.491–507

8811-2965

And he no longer had that fair complexion mingled with a blush, nor his strength and vigour and those things which, when seen just now, had pleased him; and that body no more, which Echo once had loved.

And after he had been received by the place below, even then he would gaze upon himself in the water of the Styx. His Naiad sisters grieved for him and offered their shorn locks for their brother, the Dryads grieved for him; and Echo resounded to them as they grieved.	Tot	al ma	rks
